

Administrative Assistant for White Mountain Waldorf School

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

In the winter of 1984, a small group of parents and friends in the Mount Washington Valley recognized that a meaningful education is dedicated to awakening the faculties that lie dormant within each child.

One member of this original group of parents, Dr. Michael Glick of Ossipee, was familiar with the Waldorf School Movement which was initiated by Rudolph Steiner in 1919 and is based on the conviction that a truly holistic pedagogy should encompass the education of the heart, hands, and mind.

Dr. Glick arranged to have several trained and experienced Waldorf teachers travel to the Conway area. Over a period of many months these educators gave talks and workshops about Waldorf Education. Naturally, the question of how to start a Waldorf School came, and the dedicated group of parents and families were inspired to begin the White Mountain Waldorf School.

Within a year, an Early Childhood Program serving 15 children had been developed. Through an energetic spirit and an abundance of love and enthusiasm, the school has grown to over 75 students.

Officially founded in 1984, the White Mountain Waldorf School is a nonprofit school, located on a 75-acre campus in Albany, NH offering programs from nursery through Kindergarten, elementary, and middle school through grade 8.

Creativity and a desire for learning through an education that balances academic, artistic and practical life skills are instilled and prioritized. Teachers serve and develop each child's ability to think with clarity, feel with compassion and act with purpose and social responsibility.

MISSION

The White Mountain Waldorf School instills creativity and a desire for learning, cultivates social responsibility and personal integrity, and supports the home and greater community.

SCHOOL STRENGTHS AND CHALLENGES

As with any dynamic and evolving institution, White Mountain Waldorf School enjoys strengths and confronts challenges. The school's faculty is extraordinary and employee retention is high. The academic and extracurricular programs are well developed and strong. Students rise from our Grade 8 and succeed in the most rigorous programs at public and independent high schools across our region and beyond. The school's efforts will benefit from increased funding, targeted communications, outreach and consistent messaging that effectively tells the powerful story of a modern Waldorf education in an often-chaotic society. The school has developed an educational program that receives positive reviews from the families it serves. But there is more to be done, especially at the early childhood levels. Funding for the program should be increased and resources expanded. A concerted and sustained effort in this realm will continue to be a priority.
